Similarly, the word 'Ishq-e Haqiqi' (true love) is not used to describe any homosexual feelings. Instead, another word is utilized, which is "mohabbat" [pronounced moo-haa-bat] or simply "love." There is a consensus amongst the scholars that what is intended in this verse is love between family members, or between lovers, as the verse describes "their secret consultation" of love, which is not done openly and without the prior consent of the spouses.^{pp} - We have actually put a lot of thought into the development of the script and the characters themselves, and hope to include a dynamic range of characters who reflect different gender identities, sexual orientations, ethnic backgrounds, physical abilities, and more.^{pppppppppppp}

Pre-Age of Ultron. Basically, Loki isn't such a dick and has a lot more honor than he does in the movies. He fell in love, had a child, and married. But who are you? You are the Stark's babysitter. So, you need to look out for this kid while also acting as her bodyguard and helping her stay out of the paparazzi's eye. Would it be possible for that person to be a friend who is completely accepting of Tom's true self, as I can't see her not being around someone who is part of that world. My character would be from America (from Michigan, and her previous title was governor before she lost her race), highly intelligent, witty and a bit ruthless in business, but obviously not as much as the others she is the calm to the storm.

Dr. Hailey shared a video about women from India that moved the participants, teaching about women's rights and how they compare to men's rights in

Our community knows that your future starts with the small things like having an alarm clock, an alarm clock at your bedside, working out regularly, eating well, wearing sunscreen, and seeking medical attention when necessary.

They also learned that there are many special people who were "first" in their field. We discussed Amelia Earhart, who was the first woman to fly solo across the Atlantic. Students shared their prior knowledge about Amelia Earhart. We also looked at photographs and heard passages from Amelia's Last Flight, an aviator that had traveled the world and fell into adversity and unfortunately went missing on her last flight in 1937. An excellent article on the search for her can be found here. Then the students practiced drawing their own airplane profiles. It was a fun way to apply what they had learned and to illustrate a historical event.

Here an S.E.5a that was built and is flown by Alan Mann is seen being wheeled out of the hangar. His Fokker Dr.1 Triplane is just visible in the background. This is a great video. So many nice old aircraft to see!

For aviation and military history buffs the drive from Cape Palliser to Waiouru is a must-do. You might even choose to fly to the wonderful Waiouru War Memorial at the Desert Road. Monday 25th February 2019 - Wanganui to Taihape

We packed up the van and said our goodbyes to the nice people we had stayed with before making the short drive to the southern trailhead of the Tongariro Alpine Crossing. We decided that we'd split up in to two groups; the younger and more adventurous would attempt a long climb up to the highest peak on the mountain, whilst the rest of us would take a shorter walk in another direction. On that Sunday, most of us were in need of a less demanding hike after the vigorous outing to Taranaki, so off we went towards Ohakune. Starting at the Mangatepopo Valley car park, we made our way towards the Tama Lakes.

We managed the first one without too much effort, but the second lake had the best view by far. In the background is Ngauruhoe Mountain, which is featured in the opening scenes of "The Two Towers" and "The Return of the King". The boardwalk across the wetlands was spectacular, although a little uneven. The track to Lower Tama Lake was pretty easy going. In fact, if you have lots of time it is quite possible to walk from one end of the Tongariro Alpine Crossing to the other in a day.

After completing a long hike or conquering the trail, people can visit the thermal hot springs. There are two hot springs near Rotorua, Wai-O-Tapu Thermal Wonderland and the Polynesian Spa. Wai-O-Tapu is about a 40 minute drive south of Rotorua, and has multiple thermal hot springs and mud baths, while the Polynesian Spa is located on the south end of Lake Rotorua. It is more private and romantic, and also has great options for kids such as a children's play area.

While there are plenty of things to do in Rotorua to keep you busy, there's even more to do when you venture a little further out.

Wai-O-Tapu is an active geothermal area around 30 minutes from Rotorua that is located in the Taupo volcanic zone, which contains one of the world's most active volcanic features. Located just off the Thermal Explorer Highway and 20 minutes south of Rotorua on State Highway 5, this is a 'must do' for anyone visiting the Rotorua area. It is one of the 20 most popular places in New Zealand with over 500,000 visitors a year. It's a geothermal wonderland, providing an opportunity to experience the phenomena of volcanic activity.

Hike Tongariro Alpine Crossing

The Tongariro Alpine Crossing is not for the faint-hearted, but those who attempt this 19.4-kilometre return trip (about 11.7 miles) will be rewarded with an unforgettable experience of the country's most spectacular natural attractions. This strenuous full-day hike across Tongariro National Park follows a well-marked trail with some steeper sections, including the Devil's Staircase.
